WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE A RECORD BREAKER?
Then Friends of Volunteering Clydesdale needs you!

SHOWING WHAT COMMUNITIES CAN ACHIEVE BY WORKING TOGETHER

Friends of Volunteering Clydesdale are staging an audacious Guinness World Record attempt.
With your help, we aim to generate electricity from bicycles over a 24 hour period

The record currently stands at 12,953 watts and we need at least 1000 participants to stand a chance of breaking the record. Our attempt begins at 5pm on Friday 27 August and lasts until 5pm on Saturday 28 August at Coalburn One Stop Shop.

Our heroic effort is part of our Sustainable Saturday family day where there is something for everyone and non-participants can lend their support or enjoy other activities such as a soft play area, healthy cooking demonstrations, interactive renewable demonstrations, face painting and bouncy castles.

As long as you cycle for a minimum minute, you can become part of history and gain entry into the hallowed Guinness Book of Records. This event can be used as a team building event for staff or clubs, or organisations can use it for fundraising opportunities.

We will be arranging free transport from locations throughout Clydesdale. The bikes will be provided and don't worry about the weather - we're indoors and under a marquee.
